

Transfer in BC

A brief history of BC's post-secondary transfer system

UBC

How it began...

University of British Columbia (UBC), founded in 1915, along with its satellite campus (Victoria College, in 1920) are the only options in BC for students wanting to pursue advanced academic study leading to a degree and professional qualifications.

58

60

Public Schools Act: Two-Year Colleges

1958 - Public Schools Act amended allowing school boards to establish two-year colleges:

- Colleges must be affiliated with UBC, thus assuring acceptance by UBC of credits taken from colleges.
- Students would be able to transfer to third year of a university degree.
- No school board acted upon this amendment, but Kelowna School Board did conduct a feasibility study on formation of a college in the Okanagan.

1960 - BC Vocational School opens in Burnaby under direct management of the provincial government. The Nanaimo Vocational School had been providing vocational education since 1936.

Macdonald Report Published

REPORT:
Higher Education in British Columbia and a Plan for the Future

University of Victoria (UVic)

1963 - Victoria College becomes the University of Victoria and is given degree-granting status. (Macdonald had recommended establishing a four-year college.)

1963 - Academic Board of Higher Education of BC created through amendments to the Universities Act, following recommendation from Macdonald report.

- Key roles were advising on development of new colleges and ensuring colleges were adhering to consistent academic standards.
- Board assumed a leadership role in formalizing the transfer process.
- Membership included university representatives but no college representatives.
- Board developed a facilitative and collaborative rather than an authoritative relationship with colleges.

Simon Fraser University (SFU)

1965 - Simon Fraser University (SFU) opens as a full university in Burnaby rather than as a four-year college, as was recommended in the Macdonald report.

62

1962 - Release of the report Higher Education in British Columbia and a Plan for the Future by John B. Macdonald, President of UBC.

- Colleges to be autonomous and self-governing and not part of a unified provincial system.
- Colleges to be under school board control, supported in part by local taxation and designed to meet local needs.
- Creation of two four-year colleges in Victoria and the Lower Mainland.

63

1963 - Public Schools Act amended yet again allowing establishment of autonomous colleges under school board control.

- Colleges to be formed following local plebiscites and referenda. Institutions to offer two years of Arts and Science programming as part of their program base.
- Students to be able to transfer credit to universities.
- Beginning of need for enhanced cooperation and coordination among autonomous institutions to ensure a shared understanding of quality standards for degree level programming.

64

BC Institute of Technology (BCIT)

1964 - First technology students enrol at the British Columbia Institute of Technology (BCIT) created at same Burnaby site as the BC Vocational School.
