

Interprovincial Mobility

Exploring BC Post-Secondary Students' Interprovincial Mobility with Statistics Canada Data

This project explored availability and reliability of Statistics Canada data for assessing interprovincial student mobility. The study tracked the pathways of students who enrolled full-time for the first time at a British Columbian public college or university in 2015/16 and later enrolled at a post-secondary institution in another province.

Determining Equivalency

This report presents an environmental scan of BC Transfer System member institutions' policies and workflow processes for determining equivalency for courses completed outside the province. Its findings outline commonalities as well as differences among BCTS institutions in evaluating external equivalency requests and highlight opportunities to build upon existing efficiencies.

Affordability Considerations

Affordability Considerations for Post-Secondary Access

This study explored what types of information and data are available for British Columbia (BC) prospective domestic post-secondary students to help their decisions to go into post-secondary education. The research also examined post-secondary professionals' perceptions on how these students navigate the decision-making process through a financial filter.
